Announcing: Office Hours!

What: In college, office hours are a time when your professor offers to be around in their office with the door wide open. You can come in and ask any questions you want. At SPMPS, office hours are when some of the staff give you time to come in and do things like:

- Work on math from the books we gave you and get help with problems.
- Bring in SHSAT prep materials and go over practice tests with us.
- Bring in schoolwork and get help (on any subject).
- Apply to other summer programs.
- Bring in your modules from the summer and have answers checked or look at tricky problems.
- Work on Alcumus (there will be computers).
- Talk with us about anything else.

We make ourselves available to you to work on whatever you want to work on. You can also just sit and read or work on something else in the company of friends. We’ll have books and math activities for you to do if you want.

When: August 24, 1pm-4:30pm. You can come for the whole thing or just for 30 minutes. There will be office hours every month.

Where: Grand Central Library on 46th St. between Lexington and 3rd Ave., Community Room, 2nd Floor.

Nearby subways: S, 4, 5, 6, 7 (Grand Central), B, D, F, M (Bryant Park), 1, 2, 3, N, Q, R (Times Square—farther away)

Also! We’ll have your T-shirts from this summer at Office Hours. (Don’t worry if you can’t make it; we’ll also have them at the reunions.) We’ll also have books you can borrow from us to read between reunions. Our goal is to give you lots of resources to succeed!
